

Chicago Manual of Style: Bibliography Examples

According to The Chicago Manual of Style (CMOS), you must have a bibliography page at the end of your paper when using the Notes-Bibliography system. Author-Date style is another method for documenting sources, but at Rosedale, the Notes-Bibliography system is preferred.

When deciding how to cite your sources, there is a specific CMOS format for each type of source. The Chicago Manual of Style is updated every so often. It is your responsibility as a student to make sure you are up to date with the latest style guidelines and changes. The following guide is based on the 17th edition by The University of Chicago.

You can use this Rosedale guide to help you, but you should keep in mind that different stylistic rules apply to different sources, which may not be listed here. You can consult The Chicago Manual of Style Online if you need more information.
